INDONESIAN UPRISING

END THE BRUTAL OPPRESSION

As Anarcho-Syndicalists begin to gear up for our global gathering, the Congress of the IWA-AIT later this year, tragic news came to us of our comrades in Indonesia, murdered by the state during the workers' uprising against the corrupt, autocratic and brutal regime known as the DPR (a so-called democratic people's republic) between 25 August and 3 September. It began with the police murder of a dispatch rider, Affan Kurniawan, and continued against protesters, resulting in the deaths of a further dozen or so militants, our anarchist comrades among them. The IWA-AIT section in Indonesia, Persaudaraan Pekerja Anarko Sindikalis (PPAS), has released the following statement through our secretariat: This solidarity statement we dedicate to those murdered by the State: Affan Kurniawan, Andika Lutfi Falah, Iko Juliant Junior, Muhammad Akbar Basri, Rheza Sendy Pratama, Rusdamdiansyah, Saiful Akbar, Sarina Wati, Septinus Sesa, and Sumari. Eternal as names, never reduced to mere numbers. The illusion of people's representation through parliament has collapsed. The DPR, with its reckless hands, endlessly forges policies that crush the people while deepening the abyss of social inequality. As more and more of us are condemned to live under suffering and exploitation by State-capitalism, the DPR reveals its true character as parasites — leeching off the sweat of the people, paying themselves obscene salaries with our taxes, sums unimaginable to the vast majority. The police, too, have unmasked themselves as nothing more than the guard dogs of the ruling elites and the State, answering the people's righteous anger with sheer brutality. The murder of online motorbike driver Affan Kurniawan on August 28, 2025 — a spark thrown onto the tinderbox of fury long ignited by the State — was met not with justice, but with batons, fists, tear gas, and live bullets, leaving bodies dead and broken within days.

The deployment of police and military, armed with their arsenal of weapons and the violence that comes with them, further entrenches State fascist repression. At the same time, the State seeks to monopolize "truth" — crushing press freedom, restricting social media that spreads news of the people's anger and the rot of the State and its elites. This repression is followed by arbitrary arrests of activists branded as provocateurs of the people's rage, the detention of hundreds of demonstrators, and the disappearance of dozens whose whereabouts remain unknown.

Through this statement, PPAS spits condemnation upon every instrument of State repression. We grieve, we rage, and we honor all those killed by the State during the uprisings of August 25 – September 3, 2025. We stand unflinching in solidarity with the victims of arbitrary arrest and with those still missing.

Therefore, PPAS raises the call for justice for all the people, demanding:

Strip the Parliament of its false mandate of representation;

End the forced arrests of activists and demonstrators;

Free those already imprisoned;

Return our comrades who are still missing;

Defund and disarm the police and military;

Smash State fascism in all its forms of repression.

May justice return to those who are owed. Demand the impossible! For in the end, only two roads remain: the road to the victory of the oppressed and exploited under State-capitalism — or the road to the triumph of the fascists.

PRIVATISATION PROTEST IN BANGOR

Unions held a joint protest earlier this month in Bangor against the decision of Ards and North Down Borough Council to outsource leisure centre facilities across the region. This follows hard on the heels of protracted strike action by leisure centre workers in Belfast against their already privatised workplaces and the absolute shite show of falling wages and poor conditions there. Is any more obvious proof needed of what happens when the private sector is handed council contracts, whether it's swimming pools or cleaning up dog shit? The same drive down in pay and conditions for the driving up of profits is always the result. Hopefully, the workers throughout Ards and North Down will persuade the arseholes in charge of the council that this will not wash, we support their efforts.

On the 9th of October it was reported that Hamas had received US guarantees on a first phase of a ceasefire and that 'the war' "has ended completely". As people celebrated on the streets of Gaza they were killed by the Israeli military.

The initial phase is to consist of the exchange of captives and Israeli withdrawal from parts of Gaza. Excuse our cynicism but Trump's blusterous declaration that he has "ended the war" rings hollow as peace terms are negotiated on top of the rubble of Gaza - rubble that has countless bodies buried beneath it. In the immediate wake of the announcements "the reality on the ground has not changed".

On October 7th a total of 1,139 were killed and around 200 hostages taken - since then Israel has killed at least 68,172 people and wounded 169,890 more. Thousands more are buried beneath the rubble while no accurate figures exist for those who have died of hunger and disease.

These 'Peace' talks are happening in tandem with the continuation of the genocidal clearance of Gaza - unfortunately all indications are that they will represent a slowing of Israel's clearance of the area. This is at best a temporary respite.

Many here, despite joining protests against genocide could not shift the feeling of helplessness and powerlessness as atrocity after atrocity was streamed into the phones in our hands for two years. As we are all well aware Palestine Action have been proscribed and since them countless pensioners have been arrested for wearing t-shirts. The UK government is proposing more and more draconian legislation in an effort to curtail protests, the Garda have pepper sprayed and batoned those who have tried to go further than marching from A to B and the PSNI, straight from arresting pensioners in Belfast, Derry and elsewhere in the North, were then shipped off to London to arrest protestors there as well.

Marching may show opposition but it is little better than a symbolic action. Speaking to Power does not work when power does not want to listen. However it seems even that is too much for the UK government which is proposing more powers for the police to ban 'repeated' protests. There are however some indications of tactics that are more effective. Sabotage is certainly one of them. Effective sabotage, not 'terrorism' is the reason Palestine Action were proscribed. Dockers in Sweden, France, Greece and Italy all refused to handle deadly cargo en route to Israel.

AGAINST GENOCIDE AND MILITARISM
AGAINST CAPITALIST 'PEACE' AGAINST CAPITALIST WAR

On the 22nd of September a general strike called by grassroots and syndicalist unions swept Italy in protest at their government's complicity in the genocide. The response to the interception of the Global Sumud Flotilla was a second strike on October 3rd.

Whatever happens in Gaza, whatever the terms, despite the hopeful attainment of a cessation of military operations and the slaughter of the areas inhabitants, capitalist peace is no peace at all. In the face of capitalist peace, as in the face of capitalist war, international working class solidarity must be built. Solidarity geared towards - not just to seemingly immediate issues - but towards the destruction of capitalism itself. Without that goal we will be stuck in the cycle of capitalist peace and capitalist war, and of imperialism, war and exploitation.

Even a fragile peace in Gaza won't alter that reality. There are many other wars raging across the globe as a result of the same drive for profit, exploitation and power. These things are hardwired into capitalist nation states.

We cannot rest and we cannot focus solely on Palestine and Israel. Ordinary working class people are sacrificed at the altar of war every day. We must also act against the other wars that are brewing or yet to come.

We have pointed out many times in this publication that wars are happening in Myanmar (with nearly 20,000 fatalities in 2024 and nearly 12,000 fatalities this year), Congo (with over 10,000 fatalities this year), Sudan (with 16,575 fatalities last year and over 15,780 this year), Ethiopia (with over 10,000 fatalities last year and over 4,340 this year) - the war in Ukraine had 0ver 77,000 fatalities last year and around 60,000 fatalities this year.

We need to learn the lessons and build a movement against all wars, a movement based on the unity of the working class globally and which recognises that war will remain as long as capitalism remains.

Catherine Connolly for President!

But why so cynical, 'just imagine', they say 'if she did get in. She would be a progressive voice for Ireland'. 'And?'...

Well that's just it, there is no and, nothing of substance, no significant change, the smug left will run their hands smugly if she gets in and smugly congratulate themselves on how 'progressive' it all is. In the meantime government will get on with governing, bosses with bossing and landlords from, well you see our point?

ORGANISE! IWA sign up to the Network of Anarchist Internationalists

At our Annual Assembly at the start of September Organise! unanimously agreed to sign up to the statement of the Network of Anarchist Internationalists (NAI) in opposition to war and militarism. We reproduce the statement from NAI.

The NAI is:
For revolutionary defeatism in every warring state!
Will:
Support war resisters, draft dodgers, deserters, and conscientious objectors!
Calls for:
A major libertarian internationalist initiative to counter militaristic propaganda!

Nuclear catastrophe approaches! The ruling classes 'East' and 'West' are charlatans whose lust for power and profit is increasingly based on the war industry. The self-styled West is articulating scenarios of a new world war. For them, the 'free world' is fighting an existential battle against 'autocracies' increasingly identified with orientalist stereotypes threatening to destroy our alleged 'civilisation'.
Nations in this 'democratic' camp such as Ukraine, Israel and Taiwan, are lauded as fighting the same global battle of the 'good guys' against the 'evil'. This logic even enlists Syria's islamists on the side of the 'good guys'.
On the other side, Russia, China and Iran, totalitarian states ruled by secret police, party enforcers and clerics. Each violently suppresses our class's struggle against austerity and the march to war.
We need a libertarian internationalist initiative against the militaristic propaganda daily dished out presenting our supposedly 'good' armed States as if they were a humanitarian enterprise!
We need to offer practical and moral support to war resisters, draft dodgers, deserters and groups taking internationalist positions, especially in the war zones.
Supporting refusal, conscience, desertion and draft evasion on all sides of the war fronts, for revolutionary defeatism, is fundamental. Russia and Ukraine themselves recognise desertion as a major obstacle to their death programmes.
This support within the framework of our internationalism, promotes initiatives to challenge nationalism and borders, territorial sovereignty, the nation-state or it's proto-state rivals, building new mechanisms of international solidarity and siblinghood.
The front lines are closer than you think, no further than the nearest arms or components factory, than the nearest logistics depot, transport hub or communications centre.
The war is where the ports and airports are, the military bases and their reserve barracks. It is the rail networks and motorways, the towns, estates, cities and factories where we as workers pay the price of war in poverty from worsening austerity. And now the threat of conscription.
We cannot move without being at war and when we notice it, the rhetorical guns blaze "disrupter, extremist, traitor!" We must be all these things.
It's time to distinguish our movement clearly from those who support "some wars before the class war". Between the liberal-anarchists of the 'warfare-state', and revolutionary internationalists who stand by our historic refusal to fight for capitalism, advocating revolutionary defeatism in every waring state.
What can we do practically, individually and collectively, home and abroad? On the most basic level, thinking globally, acting locally. Refuse their consensus and call out the hypocrisy, advocating for ourselves and our class across frontiers. Collectively, reject their 'national interest'. Link our struggles to austerity and their war profiteering. Everything we do for ourselves and our class, hinders their 'warfare-state'. Join in solidarity across locality and trade - victory on the home front is a victory and example abroad.
From the Arctic rivers to the Red Sea, from Taiwan to the Congo basin, continental frontiers are aflame, or bristling in preparation. The changing faces of the superpower masquerades change nothing. They want us to fight - one capitalism, one war! The danger is real, the danger is now.

SOLIDARITY WITH COLLINS' AEROSPACE WORKERS

Collins Aerospace is the global aerospace and defence company whose Northern Ireland arm, based in Kilkeel, is resisting efforts by workers to win a modest wage increase. The workers produce aircraft seating and interiors for the firm which has recently posted half-yearly profits for the second half of this year of over $1 billion. The workers are looking for a 4 and 4.5 per cent pay increase.

This follows a big dispute at Airbus in Britain, which secured a very small pay rise for workers there and threatened industrial action on Clydeside and in Lancashire among thousands of workers employed in the defence industries.

We unapologetically support these workers in their demands for a fair wage and decent standard of living, aware as we are that the defence industry is under greater scrutiny than ever, given its complicity in the genocide against Palestinians.

How we as libertarian communists support our fellow workers in these industries is important. As anti-militarists, our opposition to the arms industry is and always has been clear and unequivocal, however, we cannot moralise to people who are trying to feed their families or support calls to cast thousands of workers onto the scrap heap.

Striking against militarism and war is laudable and essential but it will not be achieved by detached lefties marching on Moyola Precision Engineering waving placards demanding the workers there go on strike against the genocide in Palestine. It is possible to support workers and oppose the arms trade, Any potential to build towards anti-militarist strike action needs discussion with and among the workforce raising the demand that the waste and futility involved in the manufacture of weapons be superseded by diversification which will enable working people to resist military contracts for civilian ones. Ultimately, however, it is only in a revolutionary liberation in and from the workplace that true emancipation can come about for all workers, whether, like those in Kilkeel, they are merely involved in commercial aircraft contracts, or firms like Moyola Precision Engineering in Castledawson or Thales (formerly Shorts) in East Belfast, who are involved in military contracts, as indeed, will be Harland and Wolff's new owners, Navantia with the building of Royal Naval supply vessels.

NHS PAY PARITY

UNISON, NIPSA and others are warning that promises made under the so-called 'Agenda for Change' framework for standardising pay and conditions for most health and social care workers have been broken. Remember, these promises were key to engineering support for the political parties when they were looking for their jobs back at Stormont and they all declared united support for pay parity with workers in Britain. Off the back of those campaigns, the nurses' trade union boss, Pat Cullen, stood and was elected for Sinn Féin in Fermanagh and South Tyrone. Health and social care workers in Scotland, England, and Wales have all had their (albeit meagre) pay awards for the coming year but still nothing in line for workers here. The Health Secretary, Mike Nesbitt, and the Permanent Secretary, Mike Farrer have already said there's no money for the pay claim despite the earlier promises. No doubt the two Mikes will batter on with statements of intent and empty promises, but workers will likely have to batter their doors down in response for even a basic hearing.

The health and social care sector in the North is the worst in the UK as it stands, with the longest waiting lists in addition to the poorer pay and conditions. The parties promised to deliver on the ill-fated Bengoa Report, a programme for the closure of hospitals and withdrawal of services under the guise of modernisation, but have not been able to do so as yet. Bengoa remains the watchword for the politicians as the magic incantation that will make everything alright, whilst chucking workers onto the dole. The real fight for health has only just begun.

Meanwhile... in Ballymena

A pachle in Ahoghill as me aul granda used to say. Though his meaning of a pachle wasn't what is recorded in the Ulster Scots dictionary. Personally I always thought Ahoghill sounded like someone trying to clear their throat and then when I recently visited, it was clear why.

Local 'defenders' (not to be confused with the oul' band, the Ballymena Young Defenders, Drumaheagles Young Defenders these days, if you give a fuck!) have been out in force with the spray cans. This time, it's the Community Centre that has been the target, possibly because of their ongoing 'Explore Other Cultures' series of events. The next scheduled event is about trying out different kinds of dances, so perhaps the BYD just want to protect the good folk of the Braid from any Strictly Come Dancing related activities – perhaps even spray tan is too sus for the local patriots! Answers on a postcard if you want to try alternative suggestions for the abbreviations displayed which surround the centre.

Pachle refers to someone who is clumsy. My granda had another use for the word. On changing a nappy and discovering it was full of shite he'd declare 'that's a right pachle!'. A more appropriate use of the word given the shite happening in Ahoghill and elsewhere.

Campaign of Solidarity

With Conscientious Objectors and Deserters in Ukraine

antimilitaristický zpravodaj

žádný halíř, žádný muž na válku a militarismus

As the Ukrainian government prepares draconian legislation against deserters and draft dodgers we reprint this article from Dezerter:

We are not criminals. We are people. Men and women who refused to become casualties of the war of two regimes. We refuse to be held hostage by political contracts and military plans. The Ukrainian government is currently preparing Law No. 13673, which criminalises everyone who has escaped the mobilisation. Anyone who refuses to return to the trenches faces a risk of imprisonment, deportation, and forceful conscription into the army.

This law entails:

• mass criminalisation of deserters and conscientious objectors,

• automatic placement into registers,

• collaboration of secret services and courts,

• threat of extradition back to Ukraine.

This is not a defence of freedom – it is its end.

Ukrainian deserters and conscientious objectors of military service need our solidarity. Their struggle is also our fight for:

• a right to live,

• a right to not be sent to a battlefront,

• a right to refuse the state and its war.

Therefore, we urge you:

Let's flood Ukrainian embassies and consulates with protest letters, petitions, emails, phone calls, and faxes. (a sample letter is available at https://dezerter.noblogs.org/post/2025/10/02/campaign-of-solidarity-with-ukrainian-conscientious-objectors-and-deserters/)

Sign an online petition (the link will be posted here: https://www.petice.com/petice_za_pravo_ukrajinc_odmitnout_valku)

Let's organise public solidarity events in front of Ukrainian embassies and during the visits of Ukrainian politicians in your country.

Download the posters and flyers and hand them out to your Ukrainian colleagues and neighbours – let them know that they should not return to Ukraine and that we approve of their decision not to fight.

Express your support to Ukrainian men and their families who have left their country so that they would avoid mobilisation and recruitment into war (In Czechia, the estimate is about 150 000 men, in Slovakia it is about 50 000. In the entire EU it concerns approximately 750-800 000 people!)

Translate the appeal into other languages and organise a similar campaign in your country. Keep us informed!

Let's stand on the side of those who say NO to militarism and war.

Each day of silence is a step further to deserters being deprived of their future. But together we can be the voice that cannot be silenced.

Glory to the deserters! Glory to conscientious objectors!

No to war – never, nowhere.

Their Wars Our Dead: Anarchist reflections on anti-militarism since the invasion of Ukraine
Alex Alder and Bill Beech (eds.) 154pp
ISBN 978-1-914567-74-2
Active Distribution 2025

This book is a welcome reassertion of the anarchist movement's internationalist and antimilitarist perspective - something that has been notable largely by its absence in the anarchist 'scene' in the wake of the Ukraine war.

Due for release mid-November Their Wars, Our Dead kicks off with an introduction by editors Bill Beech and Alex Alder (the author of British Anarchism Succumbs to War Fever). They set out the context of the book and the 4 subsequent chapters in relation to the Russian state's invasion of the Ukraine and response of many anarchists to that invasion. The introduction ends with a call for anarchists and others to "rediscover anti-militarism".

The next chapter, by Declan McCormick, Defeatism in More Senses Than One gives a brief overview of internationalist anarchist opposition to militarism and war from the First World War to the present with particular emphasis on the role of 'anti-imperialism', 'anti-fascism' and nationalist identity politics in mobilising support for militarism and war. This chapter makes clear that ideologies removed from anarchism and which have little to do with libertarian communism have impacted on the decisions made by anarchists in the Ukraine conflict.

Next, Andrew Żywności's Conscription in the Current and Coming Wars looks at how conscription is used to "...tie the masses to the long-term stability of the state". They take an in-depth look at Russia and Ukraine as well as Israel and exposing the lengths to which the first two are going in order to ensure they have bodies on the frontline and material support for the continuing war. The chapter exposes the opposition within both Russia and Ukraine to the war efforts of both states. They also examine the small but growing opposition to conscription for the state's war on Gaza and look at the differences and tensions amongst those who are refusing to fight.

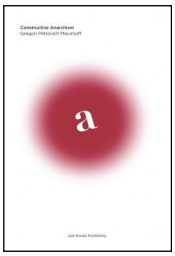
By The Skin Of Our Teeth: The Troubles, Militarism and Anarchists in Ireland by Jason Brannigan begins with a refutation that 'western' anarchists have nothing to say as they have no experience of imperialism. This chapter explores libertarian responses from groups including the Belfast Anarchist Group, Belfast Libertarian Group, Belfast Anarchist Collective, Workers Solidarity Movement and Organise! to British imperialism, the Orange state, nationalist militarism and sectarianism in the North of Ireland. It charts the birth of organised anarchism in Ireland, which coincided with the emergence of the civil rights movement, through the troubles and into a 'post-conflict' society. The chapter argues that support for militarism is ultimately damaging both to working class interests and libertarian communist goals.

The final chapter, British Anarchist Opposition to the Second World War by Jasmine Lloyd elaborates on a position that is often seen as problematic given representations of that war as a war against fascism. Nonetheless anarchists seeing through the propaganda opposed the war as one waged between competing imperialist interests. Jasmine Lloyd focuses on the role of libertarians and anti-parliamentary communists in the period. Small and organisationally strongest in London and Glasgow but the movement's regular press, represented in War Commentary held an anti-militarist line in the face of concerted oppression. In their activity the Anarchist Federation, the Anti-Parliamentary Communist Federation and others refused to call off the class war in the face of imperialist war. The war effort did not go unopposed - anarchists despite their small numbers were at the forefront of principled opposition to militarism.

Essential reading for those who desire a consistent libertarian communist approach to opposing militarism and the coming wars. Watch out for book launches in Ireland and across the water.

Just Books Publishing

Just Books Publishing, set up by the Just Books Collective, has so far published its first two titles.



The first is a reprint of Gregori Maximoff's Constructive Anarchism, to mark the 100th year of existence of the International Workers Association (IWA) the Anarcho-Syndicalist international founded in Berlin in 1922.

The second title, now with a new cover, is Nick Heath's The Idea. Anarchist Communism: Past, Present and Future - a welcome and new comprehensive work on anarchist communism, this book seeks to rehabilitate the current of anarchist-communism. To make it better known and understood.

...a good substantial book, and much needed. Lucidly written, it provides a rich brew of engaging discussions of the 'Idea' (anarchist communism as a political philosophy), interesting vignettes of many individual anarchists, and a great historical account of the many anarchist communist organisations over the past 150 years... ORGANISE!
FRIENDS OF THE INTERNATIONAL WORKERS' ASSOCIATION · AMIGOS DE LA ASOCIACIÓN INTERNACIONAL DE LAS Y LOS TRABAJADORES
WWW.ORGANISEANARCHISTSIRELAND.COM

Organise! is an anarcho-syndicalist group in Ireland which is affiliated to the International Worker's Association as 'friends of' section. We take inspiration from the self directed struggles of working-class people, and particularly the history and tradition of struggle epitomised by the IWA - the anarcho-syndicalist international. Our history goes back to the original formation of Organise! by the Ballymena and Antrim Anarchist Groups in 1985.

We are a growing, group of ordinary working class people who are fed up with being fucked about by the profit system, fed up with seeing our communities and workplaces torn apart by racism, patriarchy, nationalism and sectarianism, and sick of a greedy few getting rich off everyone else's backs.

We are actively working to promote solidarity in opposition to capitalism, the state, patriarchy and all other forms of oppression and hierarchy. The way we organise reflects the free society we want to create: one based on voluntary association, direct democratic participation and self-management.

Our members are workers, claimants, students, migrants, unemployed and other working-class people committed to building a libertarian communist union movement actively opposed to all forms of oppression and exploitation.

We want to improve everyday conditions for ourselves and other working class people, but we also struggle for the revolutionary transformation that can create a free and equal society, one based on mutual aid and co-operation. Sound crazy? Maybe it does, but in an era in which it is easier to imagine the end of the world than the end of capitalism the continuation of the present system is even crazier…

The current system isn't working – ill-health, stress and overwork affect more and more people while others are flung on the dole; for increasing amounts of workers it is precarity, zero hours contracts and the stress of being unable to plan or budget our lives; we live in a world of plentiful resources yet millions starve; some people make vast fortunes just because they own companies, land, property or natural resources, but those of us who create the wealth, work the land and build the properties are left struggling to survive; politicians tell us there's no money – not for wages, benefits or local amenities, but there's always plenty for war; both locally and globally the gap between the richest and the poorest sections of society has never been so great; instead of a war on poverty they've got a war on 'benefit fraud', while the same system that creates war, poverty and environmental destruction stigmatises, imprisons and deports the resultant refugees.

We don't think these things are inevitable or coincidental, we think they are related to capitalism – an economic system defined by wage slavery and the accumulation of profit out of other people's work. So we support all workers against their bosses in demanding higher wages and better conditions. We try to intervene practically to support workers engaged in disputes and are also active in our own workplaces and communities. Not only against exploitation but against the multiple oppressions faced by members of the working class in all our diversity.

But it's not just a question of trying to struggle by in a world of exploitation and oppression; we look to a future where workers control production and society in their own interests. And unlike some people who claim to oppose capitalism, we don't want to be a new set of leaders and we refuse to be led by anyone else. We advocate direct democracy in the workplace and through the commune in our communities – working in federation to ensure that the needs of all are met and that no-one is ever again in a position to oppress or exploit another human being.
